of the BTEA

- » The Building Trades Employers' Association (BTEA) is an active, aggressive, trade Association for union construction contractors and our industry throughout New England. The BTEA and its' affiliated industry trade groups negotiate labor agreements with the following building trade unions: Carpenters, Laborers, Iron Workers, Operating Engineers, Painters, Glaziers, Roofers, Heat & Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers, Millwrights, Plasterers' and Cement Masons, Sheet Metal Workers and Wood-Frame Carpenters. Our Association is also members of numerous affiliated and non-affiliated contractor trade groups locally and nationally, as well as, a variety of state agencies and boards, and other union construction associations.
- » Your Company will receive newsletters and bulletins which will include important updates on changes in state and national legislation, OSHA regulations, upcoming events and other industry related information.
- » BTEA offers various educational seminars on subjects of current interest throughout the year.
- » Assistance from Contractors Risk Management (CRM) a safety consulting firm to provide members an opportunity to benefit from quality health and safety professionals with over thirty years' experience in the construction industry.
- » Your company will also be listed on our membership page on the Association's website - www.btea.com
- » Your company and employees will be eligible to participate in the Thomas S. Gunning Scholarship Program.
  - BTEA is an active and aggressive Association, organized to handle problems and disseminate information on such matters as:

- Assist contractors in union negotiations; discuss and settle jurisdictional disputes with other building trades unions
- Promote harmony, improve employer-labor relations and to strive for reasonable and equitable solutions to labor problems
- Provide a forum for contractors to exchange viewpoints and ideas
- Have a legislative presence, both locally and nationally
- Forge partnerships between your business and government for economic development
- Create networking opportunities that generate business for your company
- Offer technical assistance on a variety of matters including, OSHA, building codes, inspections, state laws, safety precautions and Workers' Compensation

- » Act as an advocate for planning, zoning and development issues

- The BTEA is governed by 4 officers and 10 directors
- The Association has two types of memberships; Contractor Membership and Associate Membership

Contractor members typically include members that choose to grant the Association their bargaining rights during contract negotiations.

Associate members typically include members that the Association does not have bargaining rights for. Associate members are not all union construction contractors. They can consist of Insurance Agencies, Production Shops, Fabrication Shops, and/or Law Firms, etc.
